~~Across River Trees Hemingway Ernest~~

~~Across the River and Into the Trees is a novel by American writer Ernest Hemingway, published by Charles Scribner's Sons in 1950, after first being serialized in Cosmopolitan magazine earlier that year. The title is derived from the last words of U.S. Civil War Confederate General Thomas J. Jackson: "Let us cross over the river and rest under the shade of the trees." Hemingway's novel opens with Colonel Richard Cantwell, a 50-year-old US Army officer, duck hunting in Trieste, Italy at ...~~

Across The River and Through The Trees, Ernest Hemingway's fifth novel, was published to a perfect storm of critical derision (and Justly so). To a generation haunted by war, Hemingway created a colonel who bragged of killing 122. To an era still traumatized by Hiroshima and Dresden, he wrote of war in scenery flowery enough to be obscene.

In the fall of 1948, Ernest Hemingway made his first extended visit to Italy in thirty years. His reacquaintance with Venice, a city he loved, provided the inspiration for Across the River and into the Trees, the story of Richard Cantwell, a war-ravaged American colonel stationed in Italy at the close of the Second World War, and his love for a young Italian countess.
