Obsessive Love Addiction: You Need to Nip it in the Bud. An obsessive love addiction is a serious problem which can derail a life. Read on to know about love of the extreme kind and what one can do to recover or help someone recover from such an addiction.

You're Not In Love; You're Addicted. | Psychology Today

It is well known that serious addictions can kill people as well as destroy lives. Relationship addiction can lead to mortality and destruction, and tears apart love of self, life and the relationship to everything in our world. What Does 'Addiction' Mean? An addiction is a reliance on something for normal functioning.

Dear Annie: Addicted to love - Entertainment & Life ...

Love addiction - going from relationship to relationship, intoxicated by the high of early romance - was yet another way to beat myself up, destroying any semblance of my self-esteem. A vicious cycle of intense love, obsession, destruction and craziness had begun.

Addicted to Love | New Life

When someone is love-addicted, all of their self-esteem, feelings of positivity, and even purpose in life lie with the person they are addicted to. "They put all of their good feelings about themselves and base it on being in this relationship," Whetstone said.

Love Plus Addiction Love and codependency may coexist or be hard to differentiate, because codependents idealize and often happily self-sacrifice for their partner. When differences and serious problems are largely ignored, minimized, or rationalized, it looks more like codependency, because we're not really seeing or loving the whole person.

Obsessive Love Addiction: You Need to Nip it in the Bud ...

It can be difficult to understand how the gifts of love and romance can evolve into destructive, compulsive patterns. Yet for the love addicted, romance, sexuality, and emotional closeness are experiences more often beset with painful emotional highs and lows than gifted with real intimacy or love.

Romance is like alcohol — it can become an addiction, consuming us, destroying lives and ruining relationships with those closest to us. Some people can't seem to get enough of it. They seek it out in the most unacceptable of places — their friend's spouse, a young impressionable co-worker, or an ex that they can't quite seem to let go of.
