Ritual Non-Alcoholic Beverages | No Alcohol, Spirit-Free ...

The use of plants and plant extracts is growing in brown spirits categories and recipes multiply for the production of alternative flavored whiskey such as hopped whisk(e)ly. Hop(s) brings several advantages, being able to contribute to premiumization of the 'terroir' concept because a hop crop is easily locally sourced for an organic label.

Alcohol Substitutes for Every Recipe - The Spruce Eats

Unless the recipe makes a really small amount (with the whiskey being a strong part of the flavor) I'd just leave it out and not substitute anything for it. If the small amount of alcohol in the vanilla extract is also a problem, there are some vanilla flavoring options that don't use alcohol (vanilla sugar, for example).

By making distinctive whiskeys no one else has ever made. Corsair has made a number of alternative whiskeys: 'alt whiskeys.' An alt whiskey is any whiskey made outside the norm. The distillery focuses mainly on three types: unusual grains, smoked whiskeys from something other than peat, and hopped whiskeys made from craft beer.
