"nationalism" is a contentious and often unanalyzed abstraction that has come to be treated as something "imagined", "fashioned", and "disseminated".

Between Frontiers restores the nation to the social field from which it has been abstracted by looking at how the emergence of national spaces shapes the existence of people living in border zones, where they live between nations.

Between Frontiers: Nation and Identity in a Southeast ...

This is a book about the transformation of a border locality between two nation-states located in insular Southeast Asia. Undertaking a deep ethnography of a border community where the boundary of the village coincides with the national boundary between Malaysia and Indonesia on the island of Borneo, Ishikawa is concerned with the question of how people of a border community strategically ...

Between Frontiers: Nation and Identity in a Southeast ...

Borders are where wars start, as Primo Levi once wrote. But they are also bridges - that is, sites for ongoing cultural exchange. Anyone studying how nations and states maintain distinct identities while adapting to new ideas and experiences knows that borders provide particularly revealing windows for the analysis of 'self' and 'other'. In representing invisible demarcations between nations ...
