Sheindlin accepted the book offer, writing Don't Pee On My Leg and Tell Me It's Raining. In early 1995 two former People's Court producers, Kaye Switzer and Sandi Spreckman (who later sued Sheindlin and CBS for compensation for discovering her), [11] asked Sheindlin if she would like to preside over her own courtroom series, [12] and she eventually accepted. In an email to councillors on Thursday I said that the 'overly bureaucratic' excuse brought to my mind the saying: "don't pee on my leg and tell me it's raining." The following day's revelation that "the 'most appropriate committee' may therefore be more than one" has identified many more who can tell the difference between precipitation and warm urine.
