First Light: The Story of the Boy Who Became a Man in the War-Torn Skies Above Britain by Geoffrey Wellum (2002) It took Geoffrey Wellum 35 years to turn his notebooks into a narrative. And a further quarter-century to get them published. The result is best described as one of the most engaging personal accounts of aerial warfare ever written.

First Light: Original Edition (Penguin World War II ...

Wellum tells his story in a simple first-person narrative and it's almost as though he was sitting next to you and sharing a pint and telling you stories about flying in the war. His story starts out when he was a teenager in the summery days of his last year of public school with his chums and cricket and then his enlistment as an 18-year old civilian pilot-trainee in the R.A.F.

Penguin World War II Collection

In First Light, Geoffrey Wellum tells the inspiring, often terrifying true story of his coming of age amid the roaring, tumbling dogfights of the fiercest air war the world had ever seen. It is the story of an idealistic schoolboy who couldn't believe his luck when the RAF agreed to take him on as a "pupil pilot" at the minimum age of seventeen and a half in 1939.
