There might be a couple good things about being an all or nothing person...when I decide to do something I do it with 100% commitment and passion. However, I think the drawbacks outweigh the positives. Life is not an all or nothing venture. In fact, one of my New Year's resolutions is practice moderation – in all aspects of life.

Nothingness (Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy)

The Nothing Person can be especially dangerous if they appear as a Yes Person, but they actually are a “Say Yes, Do No” person. In Dealing with People You Can't Stand: How to Bring Out the Best in People at Their Worst, Dr. Rick Brinkman and Dr. Rick Kirschner write about how to deal with people that behave like a Nothing Person.

Nothing Person (10 Types of Difficult People)

I used to be such an all or nothing person. In most areas of my life I lived from one extreme to another. I'd be the last one standing at a night out, drinking lots – often encouraging more and not wanting the night to end, I would be tee-total and being super strict on the latest diet I decided to embrace whether it was juicing, paleo or macrobiotic.
