EM_Rider makes good points about the larger bike, but there's also a counterpoint here: The TE250/TE450/TE510 share a lot of components (example: Chain/sprockets, etc) and the TE250 puts less strain on those components. The TE250 also does better with cooling.

Love the TE 's. My wife had a 2008 TE 250 and i had a 2007 TE 450. Great bikes but the 250 dropped a valve at just over 200 hours. Bike was rode easy buy my wife but used as almost a DS bike. Cost to repair was pegged at $3,500. Parted it out and we now both have 2011 TE 630's.
