330 reviews of Lobo "While I'm not as enthusiastic as John, I agree it's a great place to eat or drink. They serve a mean margarita, make some fantastic fish tacos and service during non-weekend-peak-hours is very good. I've become a bit of a regular there lately, so getting the bill has become less shocking. Be careful with the drinks, they add up quickly.

In the North Serengeti, the Lobo Valley is a verdant, cool landscape, where the wildebeests and zebras feed and mate, before heading south in the Great Migration to give birth. Tucked between the mountains, the herds stretched farther than we could see. The scale was truly spectacular, although most of these photos only profile a few animals.
