There is an important difference between the provision of salvation and the reality of salvation. The Bible clearly states that salvation is not. In the writings of John we have: John 1:29, “Behold the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world.”

Dante’s Hermeneutics of Salvation: Passages to Freedom in... A work of considerable importance both for teachers and students of Dante studies, Dante’s Hermeneutics of Salvation will also prove useful to scholars working in medieval studies, philosophy, and literary theory.

Dante’s Interpretive Journey proposes a theory of the existential, theological structures of interpretation by which our lives in language are constructed. It brings the theological hermeneutics of Dante’s poems into contact with modern philosophical hermeneutics as developed particularly by Heidegger and Gadamer.
